Evidence that in spite of his com-mission in the United States army he was in touch with German agents, contributing to Von Bernstorff's propaganda funds and working for peace at any price before America went to war, was largely responsible for the heavy punishment imposed upon Capt. Henkes.

Capt. Henkes, who was stationed a San Antonio, Tex., last May, wrote to the secretary of war urging him to ac-cept the resignation, which he had al-ready submitted, and giving reasons which, he declared, would no longer allow him to serve as an officer of the American army.

"Further service as a commissioned "Further service as a commissioned officer must sooner or later take me to Europe, and there bring me in conflict with my relatives and friends, although for the time being my legal enemies." Capt. Henkes wrote. "My father came from Germany. My mother was born here shortly after the arrival of he parents. We have many other rela-tives and friends there. "I cannot force myself to the conviction that I am capable of making war on my kindred upon their soil in a manner that would become my duty and station. I earnestly request that I may not be required to undergo this ordeal. I seriously doubt my ability to withstand it, and would avoid, in the interest of my country, family and friends, what at least appears the probable consequences." Capt. Henkes suggested as an alternative that he be given service in some other field, although he expressed the belief that the best course the immediate acceptance of his resignation. Capt. Henkes, soon after he had submitted his resignation, was ordered t France with the American expeditionary forces and from his quarters there, June 29, 1917, wrote to the adjutant-general in Washington, calling his attention to the fact he had resigned and declaring that his battalion comand declaring that his battanon com-mander, the department quartermaster and the commanding officer of the southern department had approved his action. In this letter he repeated the reasons given to the secretary of war for desiring to quit the service.

Again, on Oct. 10, while still on duty in France, Capt. Henkes wrote an-other letter to the adjutant-general, in which he urged acceptance of his res ignation, and said he did not find oc-casion to add to or alter the views he had already expressed. "The underly-ing facts are unalterable."

Capt. Henkes was then ordered to this country, and summoned before a Island, where he was formally charged with violation of the ninety-afth article of war. This charge recited that "Having taken an oath of office, in which, among other things, he swore to support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic, and that he would bear true faith and al-legiance to the same," had written the letter concerning his resignation. The United States disciplinary barracks at Fort Leavenofficiplinary parracks at Fort Leaven-worth, Kan., was designated as the place of imprisonment, and it was de-clared that "Capt. David A. #### STORY OF ONE OF MOST NOTED MURDER' CASES OF EARLY INDIAN DAYS REVIEWED WILLING TO

Jim Foreman Killed John Walker and Finally Made His Escape After Court Held He Should Be Tried Under State Laws.

(By John G. Shamblin.)

Benton, Feb. 25.—From a historical of the Walker killing and trial: "The Occess steal, or truty, was made in standpoint the case of the State vs. Foreman is perhaps the most noted criminal law suit ever tried in this section of the country, and while the suit was not tried in this county, having occurred before this was a county and while it was known as the Cherokee nation, and on account of that fact and the fact that the defendant was related to the Hildebrands, some of whom still live in this county, and some in Oklahoma, a brief statement of the facts connected with the suit may be of interest. may be of interest.

Jim Foreman was indicted in the McMinn circuit court in 1835 for the murder of John Walker. He pleaded that he was a native Cherokee Ing that he was a native Cherokee Indian; that John Walker, for whose murder he was indicted, was also a native Cherokee, and that the offense charged, if committed at all, was mitted beyond the rightful jurisdiction of the courts of Tenness within the Cherokee nation, and that the act of the legislature of Tennessee, passed in 1833, extending the jurisdiction of the state over the ountry, then in the occupancy the Cherokees, was unconstitutional and void. To this plea, the attorney for the state, George S. Yerger, demurred. The circuit court overruled the de-murrer, and sustained the plea of the defendant, from which judgment the attorney-general prosecuted an appeal in error to the supreme court. The case was before the suprem court at its July term, 1835. Chief Justice Catron delivering the decision, which was in effect that the judgment of the lower court ought to be reversed, and the prisoner re-manded to be tried upon the merits of the case. Judge Peck gave a dis-

the case. Judge Feck gave a dis-senting opinion.

Before the next term of the Mc-Minn circuit court, Foreman, in some way, got out of the McMinn county jail and was never tried on the charge. The opinion of the court was printed in 8 Yerger and covers 250 pages and the dissenting opinion covers about thirty pages. Atty.-Gen. Yerger made such an able argument in the case that the court requested that it be published, which was done as approximation. published, which was done as appen dix to 8 Yerger. It contains a lot of interesting Indian history.

Just why nothing further was ever done with Foreman, or where he went. I don't know. In some recollections by Jack Hildebrand, a relative lections by Jack Hildebrand, a relative organized. Foreman was indicted in of Jack Walker, dictated to M. O. McMinn county.

1835 between Skimmerhorn, who was sent here by the government, and John Ridge and his son, both full-blooded Cheroke's. The young man was well educated, having obtained his education in New Jersey. Thes two men only represented the minor-ity party. The Ross party was largely in the majority but the government forced them o stand to the treaty. In 1835, Jack Walker was killed or shot down close to Cleveland, in Walker valley. He lived two weeks. Jack Walker lived at the Lea farm, three miles north of Cleveland, once wanted by Montagnery. He lived in owned by Montgomery. He lived in the loghouse, situated where Fain's house is at preesnt. He was shot out between the old Hays place on the Benton pike and where he lived. Dick Jackson, of Athens, was with him when he was shot, and he reported when he was shot, and he reported that it was Jim Foreman and Isaac Springston. They were put in jail at Athens, but were afterwards turned out. While they were in jail, the Cherokees had a called council at Red Clay, Ga., and at that council there was a collection made up, and in a short time after that Foreman and Springston came home, and it was said. Springston came home, and it was said that soon after they were released for a money consideration. Jim Fore-man told me himself that a silver key let him out, 'be gad, sir.' Being a boy then, I didn't understand it, but have afterwards thought that mone was made up at the Red Clay counci to let those men out. Jack Walker was one of the Ridge party and the others were against it. Jack .Walker was my first cousin."

There is nothing in either the Yer ger report, or Mr. Hildebrand's state-ment to indicate the cause of the kill-ing, except the statement in Hilde-brand's account, that "Jack Walker was one of the Ridge party and the others against it."

Some folks may also wonder why it was that Foreman was indicted in McMinn county, in place of Bradley county, as the crime was committed near Cleveland. In 1833, the legislature of Tennessee extended the civil jurisdiction of the counties of Marion, Hamilton, Rhea, McMinn and Monroe, so as by eral counties to include the country Indians lying within the boundary of the state of Tennessee, and as the killing was before Bradley county was

TRY TO MAGNIFY FOOD DISTRESS

Germans Spreading New Propaganda, Warns Dr. H. A. Morgan.

Nashville, Feb. 25 .- That Germany is using well-planned propaganda in-tended to magnify the distress of the central powers with respect to their food supply, thereby hoping to lull the American mind into the belief that the United States is fighting a people on the verge of collapse and that early peace is certain, is a warning sent out by Dr. H. A. Morgan, federal food administrator for Tennessee, to upon the people of this state the necessity for continuing with unabated patriotism the strict observance of every food conservation measure. In regard to this propaganda he says: Such an attitude here in the United States will delay preparations, defeat food conservation and in countless ways weaken our military and eco-nomic force. The central powers have control of thousands of square miles of productive lands in Poland, Rumania, Serbia, Belgium and France. Much of this is wheat land, and such posses-sions added to home resources make starvation through blockade a remote and futile hope. Under her system of rationing, Germany's cattle supply is ample for several years.

"The central powers can raise sufficient food for all needs if they are obliged to do so. The chief value of the blockade is to compel a diversion of the energy from war industries to agriculture. Food rationing is a neces-sary conservation measure but it does not signify early starvation. It is further pointed out that local revolts against restrictions imposed by the authorities will be suppressed by the most drastic means.

"Much of the German propaganda in the United States is so plausible and pictures conditions so similar to what we should like to believe that many loyal Americans both in this country and abroad have succumbed charms and unknowingly have helped to spread it. Any report, cablegram or letter portraying weakness of the central powers, especially purporting to be 'inside' information, bears the earmarks of German propaganda. Using every energy to prepare for a long war is the most effective means of bringing the struggle to an early end. Yours truly. "H. A. MORGAN,"

GERMANS IN MEXICO USE SPANISH AGENCY, IT IS SAID

Mexico City, Feb. 10,-(Correspondence Associated Press.)-Germans in Mexico, especially at the capital, are supplying H. von Eckardt, the German minister here, with the sinews of war for the extensive propaganda campaign that is being carried on by the legation, both through newspapers and private agents. There has been much speculation as to what means the German minister used to secure funds to maintain the large legation, his sumptuous home and the Teutonic propaganda since he was cut off from the fatherland, but it is now learned that German banks, business houses and individuals are buying his notes on the imperial government.
